I. Introduction.

Council Vice President Dan Brady presided at the July 7 meeting in the absence (excused) of President C. Ellen Connally. All other Council members were present. The meeting began at 5:03 PM and ended at 5:56 PM..

II. Antecedents, Announcements or Public Comment

Judge John Russo sought to dispel possible negative perceptions about a letter sent to council on the day of its last meeting, June 24. He explained that the four judges signing the letter had a narrow window to compose their reactions to a proposed ordinance concerning pay raises for non-union employees in the Court of Common Pleas. Russo said he “stands by the separation of powers issue” expressed in the judges’ letter.

County Executive Ed FitzGerald started a round of congratulations for those who had played a part in Cleveland’s selection as the site for the 2016 Republican National Convention.

FitzGerald thanked Council for financial support of the convention bid, for their work to see to the completion of the convention center and Global Center for Health Care, for deciding to add a hotel to the convention center project and accelerating its construction schedule. He also acknowledged the “great civic leadership” of Dave Gilbert in securing the convention.

Councilperson Jack Schron praised the work of consultant Jeff Applebaum for his innovative approach to structuring the entire process of building a convention center, a hotel and the county headquarters. Councilperson Sunny Simon commended FitzGerald for his vision and leadership.
